Equipping indigenous leaders to sustain the local church in restricted regions

WHO WE ARE

In many parts of Asia, local Christian leaders and pastors are faithfully serving their communities in places where living out their faith is difficult or dangerous. They already know the language, the culture, and how to navigate their own communities best.

New Asian Pathways (NAP) exists to support these national leaders behind the scenes. Rather than sending external teams to take over or start brand-new programs, NAP comes alongside local leaders who are already doing the work—providing them with encouragement, training, and practical resources so they can thrive.

Why Our Work Is Critical (The "China Barrier")

For decades, traditional missions relied on sending foreign workers into places like China. However, due to shifting political climates, strict government restrictions, and high security risks, almost all foreign workers have been forced out or compelled to leave.

Because of the severe risks involved, traditional organizations often cannot send individuals back in. But local, indigenous leaders never left. They have been faithfully carrying on the ministry that has existed for generations.

Where foreign workers face closed doors and high barriers, NAP bypasses those obstacles by partnering directly with local believers who are already on the ground. We don't try to force foreign presence into places where it puts people at risk; instead, we support the local leaders who are already there doing the work safely and effectively.

SUSTAINING ESTABLISHED MINISTRY

When foreign workers were forced to leave, they didn't leave behind a void—they entrusted the work directly into the capable hands of local, indigenous leaders. The ministry didn't end; it was handed off to those best equipped to carry it forward.

- Carrying the Torch: Local partners have taken full ownership of the ministry, ensuring that decades of Gospel work continue seamlessly within their own communities.
- Walking Alongside, Not Taking Over: Instead of trying to restart or replace what was left behind, NAP acts as a supportive partner—stepping in to provide encouragement, guidance, and backing as national leaders expand their reach.
- A Lasting Model: By equipping entrusted national leaders rather than relying on outside presence, the ministry remains resilient, adaptable, and self-sustaining through any future challenge.

WHY NAP IS UNIQUE

- We Don't Reinvent the Wheel: Local leaders have been doing this work long before us. We come alongside to strengthen and support what is already happening, not take it over.
- We Empower Local Ownership & Sending: National leaders aren't just maintaining ministry—they are actively raising up new leaders and sending out their own teams across Asia and around the world.
- We Build Genuine Relationships: Our partnerships are anchored in personal commitment, trust, and shared calling—not one-off transactions.

THE BOTTOM LINE

NAP serves as a vital support system for frontline leaders in restricted areas across Asia. By coming alongside indigenous partners with training, tools, and backing, we help local ministries stay resilient, strong, and equipped for the long haul.
